The Guatemala Collection

Government and Church Documents for Sacatepéquez (1587-1991)

The Guatemala Collection houses a rich array of government, church, and civil documents that bear testimony to an indigenous population's struggle and success with the changing social, economic, political, and religious dynamics of colonial and independent rule. Crucial to Guatemala's colonial and national development, indígenas (indigenous peoples) were largely discounted and denigrated. Despite such discrimination and disadvantages, many found ways to survive and thrive. Often converging at the nexus of modernization and tradition, the documents in this collection convey the complicated hybrid history of a nation striving to present itself as progressive and civilized in an Atlantic world that seldom associated those qualities with indigeneity.

The Guatemala Collection comprises ten series. Across these ten series, the documents of the collection are organized into fifty-seven distinct classifications that include such themes as economy, agriculture, forced labor, complaints, crime, annual reports, natural disasters, municipal affairs, education, elections, military, public works, religion, public health, lands and estates, development, resignations and solicitations, regulations, festivities, and maps.

Cuban Culture and Cultural Relations, 1959-

The Vertical Archive of the Casa de las Américas, Part 1: "Casa y Cultura"

Part One of Cuban Culture and Cultural Relations collection focuses upon Casa de las Américas in Havana, Cuba, which ranks among the most renowned cultural institutions in Latin America and the Caribbean. Ever since its creation in 1959, just three months after the Cuban Revolution, it has been a host to thousands of writers and artists from throughout the region. It has published countless books and articles, organized conferences, concerts, expositions, theatre productions and numerous cultural contests.

Much of the information, in its original language, is preserved in the present "Casa y Cultura" section of the Archivo Vertical at Casa de las Américas library. This section contains some 45,000 documents organized in 545 folders. This collection offers unique and exclusive access to archival materials from Cuba's primary cultural institution.

"The cultural history of Latin America cannot be understood without one of its most prestigious institutions: Casa de las Américas, based in Havana."

LATIN AMERICAN PERSPECTIVES

Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking in Latin America

The Urban Informal Economy Revisited

Freeing Latin America from Erroneous Theses:
The Legacy of Rodolfo Stavenhagen (1932-2016)

Latin American Perspectives is a multidisciplinary journal that welcomes a variety of theoretical and political perspectives to analyze capitalism, imperialism, and socialism in the Americas and strategies to transform the region's sociopolitical structures. Most issues focus on a single problem, nation, or region, providing an in-depth analysis from scholars and participants in social change.

"Latin American Perspectives is the most important resource available providing in-depth progressive analyses of developments in Latin America. It is the unmissable journal!"

—Alfredo Saad Filho, SOAS, University of London

The European Union- Latin American and Caribbean Foundation (EU-LAC Foundation) was created by the Heads of State and Government of the EU, Latin America and Caribbean in 2010, with its headquarters in Hamburg. The Foundation, which is in the process of becoming an international organisation, is an instrument of dialogue between the societies and governments of both regions. The EU-LAC Foundation is financed through voluntary contributions from its 62 Members (the EU countries and CELAC and the EU itself), and in particular from the European Union and Germany.

The Foundation designed a series of resources and opportunities, based on its mandate, to promote outreach to the general public and to foster the EU-CELAC Strategic Partnership, including:

- Calls <https://eulacfoundation.org/en/tenders>
